To begin the project, Cadence Group first considered the library's mission, which is to augment the teaching, research, and service activities of the hospital and to support research activities at its affiliate hospital by providing access to core content via online and print sources. Cadence Group provided these services:

- ▶ Evaluated the current library operation to ensure that it met the needs of patrons in a cost-effective manner
- ▶ Conducted extensive interviews with the library staff regarding current processes, procedures, and documentation
- ▶ Conducted a benchmarking study of other medical libraries in comparable situations

Cadence Group then compiled its findings and best practices-based recommendations for library administrators regarding budgets, staffing, services, training, computer capabilities, and other operational issues.

Cataloging and Shelf-Ready Services

Public Library System

This Central Library resides in a Georgia public library system that has more than 362,542 registered library cardholders and a collection of over 2,177,267 items for adults and children. When the library needed professional assistance with cataloging and shelf-ready services for an existing inventory of book and multi-media materials, it called upon Cadence Group for professional assistance.

In addition to creating standardized cataloging records, Cadence Group provided shelf-ready services such as stamping, labeling, and the application of Mylar jackets, as well as inserting theft-prevention devices and book pockets. Cadence Group also provided services for exporting bibliographic records and the processing, shipping, and invoicing of materials.

Developing and Maintaining Library Collections

Law Libraries

Some of the country's most prestigious law firms rely on Cadence Group to set up and maintain their physical and virtual law libraries. For example:

- ▶ The Atlanta location and six branch libraries of a large law firm use Cadence Group professionals for cataloging and database development. Cadence Group also developed interfaces for a web-based product that was used to launch the library catalog on the firm's intranet.
- ▶ A newly formed law firm used Cadence Group to develop a collection for the law library. This project included reviewing CD-ROM editions of applicable titles and recommending the best options for the collection. In addition, Cadence Group provided training on the CD-ROM products, managed the acquisition of all new materials and developed a streamlined system for organizing the physical library.
- ▶ When a federal law enforcement office relocated its library, it asked Cadence Group to extend its library services and facilitate organization of the new library. This project involved evaluating library resources, developing reference collections, and handling library vendors and publishers.

Preserving a Legacy

The Tuskegee Airmen Oral History Project

To preserve the legacy of the Tuskegee Airmen, America's first military pilots of color, Cadence Group preserved and organized more than 750 oral history interviews for the Tuskegee Airmen National Historic Site at Historic Moton Field in Tuskegee, Alabama. This project included processing an estimated 2,760 folders and their contents consisting of correspondence, still photos, and printed transcripts as well as historic photographs, videotape copies of interviews, self-published books or pamphlets, and other memorabilia.

Tasks included performing preservation maintenance, and arranging, describing, and cataloging organizational records and multiple formats/media into a database with a finding aid for locating archived items.
